THE GREAT DRYGULCH BANK ROBBERY

by TOM REED
& The Gutshot Posse

Take a passel of rowdy cowboys, a condemned man waiting to be hanged, then throw in Mike McKenna's gang of trigger-happy outlaws and you got the makings fer one heap o' trouble!

Adventure No.: SS007

Difficulty Level: Beginner

No. of Teams: 3

No. of Players: 3-up

Location Type: Small town

Duration: 2-3 hours

Game Marshall: Yes

The sun was just rising as the Sheriff looked up and down the dusty Main Street of Drygulch. The Double Diamond ranch had just finished a long cattle drive and all the hands were in town waiting to get paid. They were gonna whoop-n-holler tonight, but fer now they were all peaceable waitin' fer the bank to open so the foreman could draw their pay. And if a long, rowdy night ahead weren't enough to put some sand in the Sheriff's craw, there's that prisoner sittin' in the jail cell waiting to be hanged tomorrow and all them rumors flying around about how his brother aims ta bust him out.

Of course, it's probably just as well that the Sheriff didn't know that the McKenna gang was about to ride into town and attempt a daring daylight bank robbery! Yup, it was gonna be a long day in Drygulch.

WILD WEST ADVENTURE WRITING CONTEST

This adventure was written specifically for the award-winning game, Gutshot™. It is not a stand-alone game. You will need the Gutshot™ Core Rule Book in order to play. See our Website for availability. Of course, you're welcome to use it as source material and adapt it to another game system (either RPG or miniature). If you do, we'd love to receive a copy of it, and please do not post the conversion on the Internet or otherwise distribute it outside your personal gaming group. Thanks!

Recommended Miniatures:

Any standard Western miniatures will do for this game. These are available from your Friendly Local Game Store, as well as from our contest sponsors:

Starting Positions

White Hats start in the Sheriff's Office. They are expecting trouble, so they have weapons and are ready to run out the door. They must remain there until they hear a shot fired, see a Black Hat, or sense some other type of trouble. If a White Hat's name is pulled before trouble starts, just toss it back into the hat.

Gray Hats are in the Saloon. They must remain there until they hear a shot fired or obvious trouble starts. If a Gray Hat's name is pulled before a shot is fired, just toss it back into the hat.

Black Hats start in town, on foot, and cannot be closer than 12 inches from the Sheriff's Office or the Bank. They may not start inside a building.

The Story Thus Far...

Sheriff Jerry Miller tries to keep things peaceable in Drygulch, which ain't easy with all them rowdy cowboys comin' into town blowin' their wages on drinking and gambling. Still, most of them are decent boys – they're just young and fulla piss-n-vinegar. Most of them, that is... except for Skinny Otto McKenna.

Skinny Otto is just bad news. He's always getting into fights about cards, women and who-knows-what. Anything so he can show how tough he is. About a month ago he picked a fight with Sven Erikson, a big dumb Swede of a plowboy who was in town to do a little drinking while his folks were out of town. Skinny Otto and him played cards and slammed down some firewater. Lady Luck smiled on Sven and granted him the biggest case of beginner's luck anybody had ever seen. Sven won every hand that night, taking Skinny Otto down to his last dime.

That's when Lady Luck turned fickle. Skinny Otto called Sven a cheat and had drawn and fired before anyone even saw him move. The bullet caught Sven right between the eyes and he was dead before he hit the floor. Before Otto could skedaddle, though, six rough Swede Sodbusters and one burly Norwegian teamster pounded Skinny Otto plum into the ground. By the time Sheriff Miller got there, it was all he could do to keep them from lynching the killer right on the spot.

Somehow he managed it, though, and kept Skinny Otto alive through his trial and conviction. All he has to do now is keep him alive for one more day until the hangman comes to town. That is, of course, unless his no-good brother shows up to try'n spring him. And, of course, that's who's ridin' into town at this very moment: Big Mike McKenna. Not only does Big Mike plan on springing his kid brother, but he's got his eyes on that bank vault fulla the pay due the hands of the Double Diamond Ranch.

Now, most days the Sheriff might not be too much trouble for Big Mike and his gang of trigger-happy outlaws-n-owlhoots, but there's also a saloon fulla rowdy cowboys who won't take to kindly to anyone trying to make off with their hard-earned pay!

No matter how ya slice it, this is gonna turn into a three-way shootout that's gonna make the blood flow in Drygulch.

Town Layout: Drygulch

The exact size and layout of the town really isn't all that important. The only things you need to do is keep the bank and the jail at least 36 inches apart so that it takes three full Actions to cover that distance by a healthy, running man.

And remember, many towns had a "jumbled" look (like the one below) that can provide for exciting gaming opportunities. Also, keeping the town small tends to speed up the game because everyone spends less time moving and more time shooting.

WILD WEST
ADVENTURE WRITING CONTEST

Does this game need a GM?

Probably. Please see the notes on page two about the approaches to this game. If you want to run a game with lots of average townfolk trying to drive off a small gang of goons, then you probably should have a GM control the mob of townfolk using the mob guidelines in the Gutshot Core Rule Book, as well as rules for NPC morale (see section 13).

Keep in mind that having lots of Characters and NPCs on the board may dramatically increase the amount of time it takes to play this game, so check the clock before you drag out every miniature you own and put it into play!

Get back here, you coward!

If a figure leaves the table then it is considered to have fled and is out of the game. It may not return during this game.

If it's one of the White Hats, then he'll be considered a coward and will be fired when he finally dares to show his face (but heck, it's better to be a live coward than a dead hero). Ranch hands will probably hoof it back to the ranch, and his pardners probably won't think much of him from now on.

Big Mike don't want no yella-bellied cowards in his gang, so Black Hats better plan to keep on running!

White Hats, Black Hats & Gray Hats

What we got here are three teams with mostly opposing objectives. Sheriff Miller and his boys are wearin' the White Hats and they are charged with upholding the law and keeping the peace. The GM should be watchful to ensure that this team acts appropriately, and he should be quick to dock the team -5 thru -20 VP for willfully destroying property or endangering townfolk. This team has the most restrictions on its acceptable behavior, so it earns the most points for actually achieving its Victory Objectives.

Big Mike McKenna's gang is obviously wearing the Black Hats, and they don't give a hoot about nothin' or no one... except maybe themselves. They may plunder and pillage as they see fit, but keep in mind that Big Mike loves his baby brother and he will kill anyone who shoots Skinny Otto (either accidentally or on purpose). If he fails to do this his team will be docked -50 VP.

The Gray Hats are worn by a bunch of decent fellas. They're the hard-workin' and hard-playin' crew from the Double Diamond Ranch, and their "leader" is Jim Bob Wells. He's a tall drink of water who's respected by his boys for being both fair and fearless. Ain't no way he's gonna let them outlaws ride off with their money, and if people get hurt or buildings get shot up... well, that's just too danged bad. This team has almost no restrictions, other than they cannot fire at the White Hats or innocent townfolk.

Victory Conditions

In this game, the Victory Objectives for each team are pretty cut and dried, but it is possible that no team will achieve full victory. For example, if the outlaws make off with 50% of the loot but Skinny Otto is either killed or still in custody, then no one team can claim full victory. If this happens, the GM should add up all points for kills, assisted kills, partial victory and other factors. The team with the most points is the winner (unless, of course, it's a tie).

The White Hats: The Lawmen

The White Hats may declare complete victory if they meet these two conditions:

- 1) Prevent Big Mike and his men from getting Skinny Otto out of jail and off the board alive
- 2) At least 50% of the payroll is on the table at the end of the game (it doesn't have to be in the bank, just on the table)

If these two conditions are not met, then they have only achieved partial victory, in which case the GM should calculate VP based on the following criteria.

Victory Points

(Awarded individually, or divided among the team):

Kill/capture Big Mike	75 VP
Prevent Otto from escaping	50 VP
Saving at least 50% of payroll	50 VP
All other kills	see table C4.1.1

The Black Hats: The McKenna Gang

The Black Hats win if they get Otto off the board alive and they get at least 50% of the payroll.

Victory Points

(Awarded individually, or divided among the team):

Getting Otto out of Jail	35 VP
Getting Otto off the table alive	35 VP
Killing the Sheriff	35 VP
Stealing at least 50% of payroll	25 VP
All other kills	see table C4.1.1

The Gray Hats:

The Double Diamond Boys

The Gray Hats win if they save 100% of the payroll.

Victory Points

(Awarded individually, or divided among the team):

Killing Big Mike	25 VP
Killing Otto	25 VP
Saving at least 50% of payroll	25 VP
Saving all of of payroll	75 VP
All other kills	see table C4.1.1

Gray Hats: Double Diamond Ranch Hands

Featured Sponsor: Life in the West was rough-n-tumble and it's nice to have solid buildings that can stand up to the action. Arnica, Montana makes a fine line of 25/28mm resin buildings that can gussy up any gaming table... and at prices that won't tempt you to rob a bank! Plus, they make the only five-cornered saloon suitable for use as "The Gem" from HBO's Deadwood television series.
